

Tuesday, November 8, 2011

RSS | E-mail Newsletters | Put PRWeb on your site

The World Egg Bank Offers New Financial Options for Managing The High Cost of Infertility Treatments

Dream of Motherhood Becomes More of a Reality as The World Egg Bank, A Commercial Fresh and Frozen Donor Egg Bank, Partners with CapexMD to Provide Low-Interest, No Collateral Loans. 24 Hour Approval After Application Submission.

Phoenix, AZ. (PRWEB) November 08, 2011

Share This Email PDF Print

More than 88 million women received some kind of infertility treatment in the United States last year. More than 15 percent of them did not pursue treatment for financial reasons. Of those patients requiring in-vitro fertilization, The World Egg Bank (<http://www.theworldeggbank.com>), a commercial fresh and frozen donor egg bank agency in Phoenix, AZ., estimates 25 percent would be interested in financing given reasonable rates and terms. "Without available financing, a patient often has to decline the recommended procedure due to its high cost and either settle for an alternative or forgo the opportunity all together," said Diana Thomas, CEO and Founding member of TWEB. "This is heartbreaking for so many couples," she added.

The World Egg Bank recently partnered with CapexMD (a fertility finance company) to offer financing to anyone who utilizes one of the company's 500+ available egg donors.

The partnership with CapexMD (<http://www.capexMD.com>) will allow The World Egg Bank, an agency specializing in matching egg donors to infertile patients and providing frozen donor eggs as an option for IVF treatment, to reach more women and couples facing economic challenges as well as the need to proceed immediately into treatment.

"We are so pleased to be able to offer financing. The partnership with CapexMD is an amazing opportunity for our recipients to develop treatment plans that would not have otherwise been possible," said Thomas.

Infertility treatment technologies are rapidly improving. The most impacting technology is the successful development of egg freezing, which makes the IVF process more reliable, efficient and patient friendly.

CapexMD:

Interest rates are 11 to 13% - much less than competition and credit card

No Collateral is required

24 hour Approval after application submission

Approval rate of 60% - this is 15% greater than the industry average

Patient can see the doctor of their choice

Immediate funding on approval

Costs

Fresh Donor Eggs: $25,000 - $40,000 per attempt

Cryopreserved (Frozen) Donor Eggs: $20,000 per attempt

Outcomes with cryopreserved donor eggs are statistically comparable and a vastly simplified process than fresh donor eggs.

Demographics of a Couple Pursuing Infertility Treatment:

A couple (95% of patients have a partner) is well educated and has two incomes

Which Child Came From Donor Eggs?

"I didn't have money to pay for IVF and I had tried so many other finance companies without success. I filled out a form on your website on a Friday night, thinking I would once again be disappointed. Instead, that night changed my life. -Julie- "

Contact

Marisa Maggio-Hareless
The World Egg Bank
602-300-2010 602-678-1906
Email

Attachments

The World Egg Bank...With Over 500 Donors, Provides The Largest Frozen & Fresh Donor Egg Database in The World.

Fertility Financing Can Make a Patient's Dream of Motherhood Come True. Wendy Kennedy with daughter Avery, paid off her loan in two years.

In-Vitro Fertilization

Expensive

Pregnancy Rates Between Fresh and Frozen Donor Eggs Are The Same. Frozen Donor Eggs Are More Convenient & Less